College Science Teacher Has Einstein Collection

Possessing one of the most extensive collections of material on Albert Einstein in existence is Julius Sumner Miller, member of the physics department at El Camino College.

Through the means of a Carnegie Grant Miller spent the summer of 1950 with the famed scientist, philosopher, humanitarian, and mathematician at the Institute for Advanced Studies in Princeton, N. J.

Additional to the hundreds of photographs and letters of Einstein which he possesses, Miller has copies of most of the scientist's publications. The majority of these are autographed. Behind many of the collector's items are unusual stories of Einstein himself and the men with whom he has associated.

A regular correspondent of Einstein, Miller has collected materials for the biography which he is writing over the period of many years. Of Einstein Miller says:

"I think a mistake is made by the public at large when it considers Einstein a physicist and philosopher. I would say that he is first a humanitarian, and in these troubled times, this would count for more."

Elected to American Men of Science in 1954, Miller is an outstanding personality in his own right.

can Journal of Physics, School Science and Mathematics, American Mathematical Monthly, Tutor News, and Scientific Monthly.

A Ford Foundation fellow in 1952, Miller served as civilian instructor with the Signal Corps during war years.

Next summer will mark the sixth which he has spent as a visiting professor on the staff of the University of California at Los Angeles. Through-out the year, he has served as an instructor in the physics extension division of the university.

In past summers, Miller has taught at the University of Idaho, Boston University, the University of Oklahoma, Ohio Wesleyan, the University of Redlands, and the University of Alberta.

A Prolific Writer
A member of the American Association of Physics Teachers and Phi Mu Epsilon, honorary mathematical society, the El Camino instructor is a prolific writer. He has served as the physics editor of School Science and Mathematics, as problem referee for the American Mathematical Monthly, and as book reviewer for School Science and Mathematics.

Among the magazines which have published articles under Miller's byline are the Ameri-

While the owners of the house were away at a wedding, thieves entered a bedroom window and virtually cleaned out a home in north Torrance, according to police.

Victim of the burglary was George H. Sacks, of 18015 Prairie Ave.

He told officers that he and his wife returned early in the evening and found their television set had been taken. Further investigation revealed that two clocks, 14 shirts, two pairs of slacks, two blankets, two pairs of shoes, a diamond ring valued at $500, a ladies wrist watch and some other articles were missing.

The thief cut through a back screen and came in an unlocked window.

Two shirts and a pair of slacks were found a block away in an intersection.
